

A PARKS BOARD ARTIST IN RESIDENCE PROGRAM

Brit Lit is an exciting Park's Board Artist in Residence youth-driven, artist-led photography project that captures the places and personalities that light up the community. Each photo is meant to offer a unique perspective into what a young photographer considers special.

Youth photography workshops have already taken place throughout the summer of 2007. From this collection, photo's have been selected, framed in lightboxes and exhibited in the main halls of the Roundhouse in February 2008.

The lightboxes will eventually be installed permanently on site at the Britannia Community Services Centre. They are intended to be a living legacy in the community, to be updated annually with new photo's taken by our youth.

Brit Lit was led by community artist and photojournalist Christine Germano; artist intern, graphic designer and Teen Centre volunteer Robyn Gillrie; and Arts & Culture Programmer of Britannia, Brenda Racanelli.

The Brit Lit project gratefully acknowledges the Parks Board Arts & Culture office (the Artist in Residence Program), the Neighbourhood Matching Fund, the Britannia Community Services Centre and all the youth who participated. Thank you for your perspective and shedding light on what makes this community great! Thanks also to the Roundhouse for assistance with Brit Lit's opening exhibition.
