3 Membership update

Damien has stepped down from the council. Jesse will check with the clerk's office about quorum and add the response to the member resources page.

- Meeting will be adjourned after the Indigenous food systems workshop with Dawn Morrison

A report will go to council on July 10, speakers are welcome. The City is looking for short and mid-term actions, and the timing will be aligned time with provincial and federal strategies. It was suggested that City Planners could present at the VFPC for a special meeting. There was a suggestion to have a city advisory committee focused on poverty advisory. For the stakeholder process, best practices were used but there are questions of context regarding who was asked what, and to what end. The report will be examined after to look for pieces that could inform VFPC's work in the fall.

5 Working Group Updates Tabled.

6 Reconciliation priority - Workshop: Indigenous food systems with Dawn Morrison

Dawn introduced Senaqwila Wyss, who welcomed VFPC with a traditional song. She then presented on her work with indigenous food systems in BC. The meeting served as an introductory conversation.

Dawn discussed protocol around visiting and doing work in different Indigenous territories. This is different for different Nations and territories. When she travels she will let people know: who she is, where she comes from, what her business on this land is, and how her work will benefit the people of this land.

Dawn shared information on the Decolonizing Research and Relationships Methodology, which includes the four pillars:

1. Sacredness
2. Participatory nature of indigenous food sovereignty
3. Self-determination
4. Policy

Dawn is developing a report which will provide more detail and serve as the official record of the workshop. She suggested and offered to do a second workshop with VFPC in August to continue the conversation and learning. The Reconciliation Working Group will work with Dawn to determine a date and priority goals for this session.

8 Motion to adjourn
