Subject: Upcoming IB: City preparing for snow over Family Day long weekend

Good afternoon Mayor and Council,

We will be issuing a media release this afternoon to alert the public that the current forecast for Vancouver is calling for snow this weekend and the City is preparing its crews to respond. Flurries are set to begin this evening and persist into late Saturday afternoon becoming moderate to heavy at times. We could see up to 8 centimetres of snow in some areas of the city by tomorrow with more on the way overnight on Sunday, into Monday.

Our response throughout the weekend will be guided by the weather. We have 3,000 tonnes of salt, 100 vehicles and equipment and hundreds of staff available to deploy as required. Crews will focus on treating priority routes for ice and snow. All week our staff have been out patrolling and treating priority routes for ice, primarily with brine.

Best,
Paul
