Hi Harry

Now that the barge and fencing have been removed, I see there is some asphalt left over on the seawall and the grass area where the security cars and trucks drove on is in need of some turf remediation. Could the company in charge of the barge removal be able to pick up the left over asphalt and remediate the turf area?

Let me know if you have any questions.

Thank you
Janice

Hi Harry,

Yes, toppled fencing has been righted and secured. We've also cut some windows in the banners to allow wind to pass through to hopefully reduce the loading.

Thanks,

OK. Let me know once and if Tues is confirmed so we can ensure access is provided.
Presumably it'll be like the installation via a hiab and flaggers?

Harry,

This sounds good. The scaffold removal will continue on Monday for the pickup of the final pieces and removal of the stairs that were constructed off the seawall. We will look to schedule the fencing tear down for Tuesday, no date had been confirmed yet.

Thanks,

Hi Ian,

Thanks for confirming. I have been advised that the PB commissioned assessment will actually be on Monday morning at 8am, which is good news.

When are you planning on removing the fencing – Tues would be preferable as we'd like to time all of this in line with a comms release proposed for next Weds.

Thanks,

Harry

Harry,

Our habitat assessment was completed from the water yesterday and the beach today. Scaffolding removal should be complete by the end of the day. Security coverage has been discontinued as the request of the Adjuster as of this morning.

What is the timeline for the CoV assessments? We are expecting to remove the fencing next week.

Thanks,

Harry,

We had a very productive weekend and are at a stage where just the centreline bulkhead some framing remain in addition to the bottom hull plate. We were able to extract the piles today.

The remaining bottom hull plate is set to be removed in 9 pieces. to complete these removals on Tuesday, we are seeking permission for a final tide shift tomorrow night from 10 PM to 4 AM. The crew would work a standard day shift before returning at night. This shift is required to complete the final cuts and preparations for removal. We have divers scheduled for Wednesday to assist with rigging and removal of the final pieces.

Thanks,
Ian

Harry,

Tonight's shift would begin at 09:00PM and continue into the early hours of the morning depending upon the tides. Crew would then continue into the high tide of the morning to lift sections out during the regular working hours.

Tomorrow's shift would begin at 10:00 PM and continue to approximately 03:00 AM.

The tide work would be limited to cutting activities to keep the noise down. We have 110V light plants on-site and will direct all lights away from the residential area.

Harry,

We are seeking the CoV's approval to proceed with two final tide shifts in order to remove the final section of hull. We are proposing to work our normal shift today (07:00 AM to 3:30 PM) and then return at 09:00 PM to perform the cutting required to remove the final bulkheads of the barge.

Once the final bulkheads are removed, an additional tide shift on Wednesday PM will be required to perform the final cutting of the hull plate during the low tide. The work on-site on Thursday would be limited as the crew will need sufficient rest following the shift and we would return on Saturday to remove the final sections of the bottom plate.

Pile removal and beach cleanup will follow within the bylaw hours during the week of the 14th with complete demobilization of the marine equipment planned for the 18th.

Please let me know if you require additional information.

Thanks,
Ian

Hi Harry,

Last night's shift was successful and we were able to get a lot done. We will be back tonight to cut the bottom plate.

In an effort to take advantage of the good weather in the forecast, we'd like to also inquire about working Sunday 0700 to 1730. Would the city be open to us working this shift?

Regards,
Ian

Thanks for the additional info Ian. CoV approves the out of hours work for tonight and for tomorrow night. This is in addition to the day time work scheduled for this coming Saturday.

We will let our 311 team know given the work may generate complaints.

Let me know if there is anything else.

Cheers,

Harry

Harry,

Tonight's shift would begin at 09:00PM and continue into the early hours of the morning depending upon the tides. Crew would then continue into the high tide of the morning to lift sections out during the regular working hours.

Tomorrow's shift would begin at 10:00 PM and continue to approximately 03:00 AM.

The tide work would be limited to cutting activities to keep the noise down. We have 110V light plants on-site and will direct all lights away from the residential area.

Regards,
Ian

Harry,

We are seeking the CoV's approval to proceed with two final tide shifts in order to remove the final section of hull. We are proposing to work our normal shift today (07:00 AM to 3:30 PM) and then return at 09:00 PM to perform the cutting required to remove the final bulkheads of the barge.

Once the final bulkheads are removed, an additional tide shift on Wednesday PM will be required to perform the final cutting of the hull plate during the low tide. The work on-site on Thursday would be limited as the crew will need sufficient rest following the shift and we would return on Saturday to remove the final sections of the bottom plate.

Pile removal and beach cleanup will follow within the bylaw hours during the week of the 14th with complete demobilization of the marine equipment planned for the 18th.

Please let me know if you require additional information.

Thanks,
Ian
