Members of Vancouver's first ever Special Event Advisory Task Force announced Task force aims to make it easier to host festivals and events in Vancouver

In November 2023, the City of Vancouver issued a call for applications for a new Special Event Advisory Task Force. The Special Event Advisory Task Force will help identify key challenges and opportunities within the City's existing permitting processes, and work alongside City staff to make it easier to host festivals and events in Vancouver.

"We're excited to introduce the members of Vancouver's first ever Special Event Advisory Task Force," said Mayor Ken Sim. "A thriving events industry is essential for our city's vibrancy and connectivity. This task force is made up of top-notch industry professionals, and I'm eager to hear their recommendations on how we can make it easier to host festivals and events in Vancouver."

The inaugural Special Event Advisory Task Force is comprised of 14 community members, who will meet for the first time early this spring.

The City received 155 applications for membership from a wide variety of people involved in Vancouver's events industry.
