Key Messages – PB

- This is a new era of parks in Vancouver.
- We are taking a long overdue step to ensure our parks and recreation facilities are able to serve our community to their fullest potential.
- Our parks are our city's jewels, and our commitment to preserving these green spaces remains unwavering. This change is about managing these spaces more efficiently, not about compromising them.
- We are the only major Canadian city with a separate park board structure, this has led to unnecessary duplication of services.
- Mayor Sim has a motion coming to council that if passed will request the Province amend the Vancouver Charter to eliminate the requirement for an elected Park Board, and bring the oversight of parks and recreation under City council.
- The proposed motion also asks that the Province amend the Vancouver Charter to increase protections for park land and green spaces.
 - Specifically – the motion requests that the Province amend the Charter so that any land use changes for parks and green space would require unanimous support of council followed by a public referendum.
- The Vancouver Auditor General released a performance audit of the Park Board's revenue management practices earlier this year.
- The audit determined that the Park Board did not operate an effective framework for achieving revenue-related objectives, and that there was not enough proactive engagement with council to ensure priorities aligned with available funding.

Additional Park Board Key Messages:

Land Ownership/Park protection

- This change will strengthen protections for parks and greenspaces.
- There are a number of parks across the city that are currently designated as temporary parks or greenspaces under the custody, care and management of Park Board.
- We've asked staff to speed up the work being done to transition these parks and greenspaces to permanent park status and ensure their protection for future generations.
- In many cases there is City infrastructure on these lands, and designating them a permanent park can create challenges for upgrading and maintaining any critical infrastructure. Once the Park Board is folded this wont be an issue.

Staffing at Park Board

- We have amazing people at Park Board, but the current structure does not work.
- Streamlined governance will result in substantial operational efficiencies, freeing up staff time to get more things done quicker at existing staff levels.

First Nations Engagement

- Our city is committed to ensuring reconciliation is at the forefront of everything we do.
- Folding the Park Board in will create a single point of contact for reconciliation.
- We will work with the province to ensure that all three nations are included in this process.

Key Messages - PB

- This is a new era of parks in Vancouver.
- As citizens of Vancouver, we have a unique opportunity to lead a change in how our parks are managed.
- Our parks are our city's jewels, and our commitment to preserving these green spaces remains unwavering. This change is about managing these spaces more efficiently, not about compromising them.
- It is time our parks and recreation centres are returned to the gems they once were.
- Imagine a Vancouver where our park spaces are managed more collaboratively and in harmony with the city's broader priorities. This change will lead to more cohesive and effective management, ensuring our parks continue to thrive and serve our community in the best possible way.
- Unlike any other major Canadian municipality, we've maintained a separate park board structure. While unique, this has led to unnecessary duplication of services.
- This council has already shown initiative in restoring the historic treasures of Vancouver
 - The Stanley Park train will be running for the first time this Christmas since it first stopped running in 2020
- The establishment of a Parks Advisory Committee will ensure that this transition is smooth and that your voices are heard. We value the involvement of our stakeholders, including you, the citizens, in shaping the future of our parks.
- This isn't a decision we're making in isolation. Many key figures, including former park board members, recognize the redundancy in our current structure and support this change.
 - Their endorsement is a testament to the positive impact this decision will have on our community.
- It's time we streamline our processes to align with the efficient practices seen in other major cities across Canada.
- s.13(1), s.17(1)
 - This is a significant financial benefit that goes back to you, the taxpayers, contributing to the overall financial health and sustainability of our beloved city.
- We are proceeding with transparency and adherence to legal and legislative requirements, including necessary amendments to the Vancouver Charter. This process ensures that every step we take is in the best interest of our city and its residents.
- For any significant decisions, such as housing developments on parkland, a public referendum will be required. This ensures that your voice, as a citizen, is heard and that such critical decisions are made with your direct involvement and consent.

Motion Introduction SNs (KEN):
Amendment to the Vancouver Charter

- We are committed to making Vancouver's parks and recreation facilities the best in the world
- And we were elected to make bold decisions and take decisive action when necessary to support Vancouverites
- Decisive action that will the long-term growth and success of our parks and recreation services
- My motion today will allow us to serve our community to its fullest potential
- It asks the Province to amend the Vancouver Charter to eliminate the requirement for an elected PB so that Council can take the direct responsibility for parks and recreation in the City, and we can return our parks to the gems they should be

- What we've learned in recent years is that how we've been managing our parks and recreation facilities Just (pause) doesn't (pause) work
 - And the current set up makes it even harder to manage and grow our parks and recreation services
- The system is broken pause and no amount of tweaking will fix it
- These changes are long overdue: Minneapolis is the only other city in North America that has an elected park board
- We should not be keeping a governance model that isn't replicated anywhere, that holds our parks back from their greatest potential

This change will allow us to manage Vancouver's parks and recreation facilities more collaboratively, and in harmony with the City's broader priorities

Our parks are our city's jewels, and our commitment to preserving these green spaces remains unwavering

Make no mistake about it, this change is about managing these spaces more effectively, not about compromising them.'

In fact, we will adding greater protections to our parklands than ever before. Current protections require a 2/3 majority from City Council and a 2/3 majority from Park Board for any changes to be made to parkland.

Any change of land will now require a unanimous vote from Mayor and Council, as well as a public referendum. These added protections will ensure parks remain parks.

As Vancouverites, all our voices count.

- The transition to this new model will be inclusive and transparent.

We will be able to have a direct relationship with our CCAs

We will also be establishing a Parks and Recreation Advisory Task Force:

- to ensure the smooth transition of responsibility for parks and recreation services,
- from the current elected Park Board to Vancouver City Council.

The Task force will have a mandate to coordinate the ongoing engagement and relationships with park and recreation stakeholders, and

- bring community perspectives to the forefront.

Staff will also be working to develop a transition plan,

- through which more operational efficiencies will be identified and developed

Beyond the opportunities for improved services,

- we know that adopting this new streamlined governance approach –
- Will result in substantial operational efficiencies,
- which will free up a huge amount of staff time
- which means more things will get done quicker with existing staff levels
 - which also avoids future incremental operating costs.

In fact:

s.13(1), s.17(1)

Every $ saved is a $ we'll invest back into the city,

- strengthening the fabric of our community,
- enhancing the vibrancy of Vancouver,
- allowing us to live in a Vancouver that is not just a place to live, but a place to thrive.

Thriving means having spaces that aren't just office blocks and houses.

It's our precious communal spaces like parks that bring us together.

And it's for this reason that our commitment to improving our parks and recreation facilities is unwavering.

Let me be incredibly clear here:

- The decision to introduce this motion was not made in isolation
- We have the backing of a wide range of community leaders, including:

- those who have served on the Park Board, and
 - who acknowledge the need for change.

Their support speaks volumes about the positive impact we expect to make on our community.

And for those who may worry what this means for our cherished green spaces, know this:

- The same protections that have always been in place will remain in place

We are making decisions about a clear vision for the future...

- a future where our parks are:
 - protected,
 - properly maintained, and
 - enjoyed by all.

Thank you.

Vancouver Mayor Ken Sim Seeks Amendment to the Vancouver Charter to Remove the Elected Park Board

Vancouver, B.C., December 6, 2023 – Mayor Ken Sim announced this morning that he is bringing forward a motion asking the Province to remove the requirement for an elected Park Board under the Vancouver Charter.

To accomplish this change, Mayor Sim will be introducing a motion at next Wednesday's Council meeting requesting that the Province amend and repeal the relevant sections of the Vancouver Charter, and for the legal powers currently held by the Park Board to be transferred to City Council.

Mayor Sim's motion states that in recent years, "it has become abundantly clear, given the poor state of Vancouver's parks, recreation services, and infrastructure, that a fundamental change in the governance structure is not only needed, it is the only viable path forward to efficient and effective parks and recreation services for the people of Vancouver."

"Make no mistake about it. Vancouver's parks, recreation services, and cultural assets are prized by Vancouverites and visitors alike and must be protected, maintained, and preserved indefinitely for future generations," said Mayor Sim. "The commitment I'm making to the people of our city today includes establishing stronger protections around any changes to our parks. This will be a new era for parks and recreation in our city."

Vancouver is the only municipality in the entire country with an elected park board. In every other city in Canada, parks and recreation services are managed directly by a parks and recreation department under the direction of their respective city councils.

Recently, Vancouver's independent Auditor General released a performance audit of the Park Board's revenue management practices. The audit determined that the Park Board did not operate an effective framework for achieving revenue-related objectives. Moreover, it found that the Park Board was not proactively engaging with City Council to align its priorities with available funding, despite the fact that all Park Board expenditures require the approval of City Council.

Vancouver's park and recreation assets include 250 public parks and beaches, including Stanley Park, VanDusen Botanical Garden, Bloedel Conservatory, a large public recreation system of 24 community centres, swimming pools, rinks and arenas, sports playing fields, playgrounds, fitness centres, three championship golf courses, street trees, and marinas among other services and facilities.

Mayor Sim's motion also calls for the creation of a Parks and Recreation Transition Working Group to facilitate a smooth transition of responsibility for park and recreation services from the current oversight by the Park Board to the oversight of City Council. The working group would be in place for six months to coordinate ongoing engagement and relationships with park and recreation stakeholders. It would be supported by City staff through the City Manager's Office.

Quotes:

Chief Wayne Sparrow - Musqueam First Nation

“This is definitely a step in the right direction. Having a single department with authority for park land in the city will benefit everyone, including the Musqueam Indian Band. As a local nation with many levels of formal and informal interaction with the City, the proposed streamlined structure will provide clarity and a single point of contact for engaging with the City on the issues that matter most to our people.”

Lorraine Lowe - Executive Director, Dr. Sun-Yat Sen Garden Society

“The Dr. Sun-Yat Sen Garden Society of Vancouver provides engaging cultural events for the Vancouver community throughout the year. Since 2016, we have not been able to negotiate a renewed lease agreement with the Parks Board resulting in ongoing challenges around maintenance and investment in the space. I am optimistic that the motion being brought forward will alleviate some of the challenges our organization has faced over the years.”

Mike Burdick – President, Marpole Community Board of Directors

“I am, along with our Community, all for change that will help simplify city processes. In our experience, this cannot happen soon enough. We look forward to working with Council directly to support the Marpole community, including the work currently underway to build the long awaited Marpole-Oakridge Community Centre. If these changes can make it easier for another Community to achieve their goals then we are all for it!”

Mia Kohout – General Manager, Vancouver Bike Share Inc. (Mobi)

“We are excited to see this motion come forward. Historically, establishing new Mobi Bike stations in parks has been complicated and slow because we have to work with two governmental bodies within the City of Vancouver. This change would simplify and speed up the approval process for Mobi stations in parks, eliminating unnecessary bureaucracy and allowing us to bring more active transportation services to our city.”

Pall Beesla - South Asian Community Advocate + Vaisakhi Organizer

“South Vancouver has been overlooked for too long by past Park Boards. I applaud Mayor Ken Sim for proposing to collapse the Park Board. It’s been clear for a very long time that things are not working well under the current structure, and change is overdue. There is a significant park and recreation deficit in the city, particularly in South Vancouver. Through organizing community events, we have seen many challenges and redundancy that make community building difficult because of inefficient processes.”

Mark Cylwa – President, Vancouver United Football Club

“At Vancouver United our motto is ‘Game, Club, Community’. With that in mind, we strive to develop young soccer players, not only as players who we hope will enjoy involvement in the game for their lifetime, but as individuals who will be active in the club, supportive of other club members, and contribute to the well-being of the community as a whole. A key issue in obtaining our goals is access to a safe, reliable inventory of field space on which to run programming and accommodate our growth. At Vancouver United FC, we support any initiative which has the goal of improving equal field access to all stakeholders in a fair, efficient and effective manner.”

Paul Runnals – Executive Producer, Honda Celebration of Light

“As a company that specializes in festivals and major events, we are focused on delivering safe, exciting and innovative events in the region. I support this motion as I believe it will streamline the festival permitting and approval process and will help to create a financially sustainable environment where organizers can bring even more diverse and engaging events to our city.”

Leigh Ramsden + Rod Akizuki, President + Treasurer of Vancouver Minor Softball Association

“The Vancouver Minor Softball Association, which provides softball for hundreds of girls and young women in Vancouver, is motivated to bring the benefits of youth sports to the next generation of female athletes in our city. As such, we are supportive of any measures which improve the fields and facilities we use, and their administration. We look forward to working hand in hand with the City to help engage with more girls and young women, and increase their opportunity to play sports as we move forward.”

Motion:

Amendment to the Vancouver Charter

Submitted by: Mayor Ken Sim

WHEREAS

1. The City of Vancouver, including the Vancouver Board of Parks and Recreation ("Park Board"), is primarily created and governed by the Vancouver Charter (VC), a provincial statute enacted in 1953 that incorporates the City of Vancouver;
2. The VC sets out the statutory powers and authorities which govern the City of Vancouver, and provides a range of powers and responsibilities different from those of other communities governed primarily by the Community Charter ("CC") and the Local Government Act ("LGA");
3. The VC governs how the City operates, what by-laws Council can enact, and how budgets are determined. Under the VC, Council has the authority to enact by-laws to regulate such things as noise and land use, to buy and sell property, to collect certain taxes, to approve expenditures, and to take on debt, give grants, and hire and discharge employees;
4. The Park Board is established by section 485 of the VC (Part XXIII – Parks), which reads:

“A board of commissioners, to be known as the "Board of Parks and Recreation" or "Park Board," shall be elected as hereinafter provided, and shall consist of seven members or such other number as the Council may by by-law prescribe. The Board has the legal capacity to exercise the powers bestowed on it and to enforce those powers and the exercise thereof by actions, proceeding or prosecution.”;
5. The Park Board looks after 250 public parks and beaches, including Stanley Park, VanDusen Botanical Garden, Bloedel Conservatory, and a large public recreation system of 24 community centres, swimming pools, rinks and arenas, sport playing fields, playgrounds, fitness centres, three championship golf courses, street trees, and marinas, among other services and facilities;
6. The City of Vancouver is the only municipality in Canada with an elected park board, with the exception of the Cultus Lake Park Board which is made up of five elected Commissioners (i.e., three elected from the Cultus Lake Park jurisdiction and two elected from the City of Chilliwack jurisdiction);
7. Vancouver’s Auditor General (AGO) recently released a performance audit report of the revenue management practices of the Park Board. The audit determined that while some processes were used to inform fee-setting, the Park Board did not operate an effective framework for achieving revenue-related objectives for its revenue-generating assets and services;

8. The AGO's audit report further noted that the Park Board's overall funding structure, as set out in the VC, requires it to obtain City Council approval for all expenditures, including the expenditure of funds generated from revenue-generating activities. The audit found that while the Park Board has strategies to guide the delivery of parks and recreation services, it had not proactively engaged with City Council to align its priorities with available funding;
9. Vancouver's parks, recreation, and cultural assets are prized by Vancouverites and visitors alike and must be protected, maintained, and preserved sustainably and in good working order for future generations;
10. The Park Board, for most practical intents, functions like any other department of the City, albeit as a separate entity with significant independent authority through its elected board;
11. Over the years, the Province has amended the VC numerous times to accommodate the changing needs and priorities of the city. Some amendments have been significant while others have been consequential and/or incidental to other legislation introduced by the Province; and
12. In recent years it has become abundantly clear, given the poor state of Vancouver's parks, recreation services, and infrastructure, that a fundamental change in governance structure is not only needed, it is the only viable path forward to an efficient and effective parks and recreation service for the people of Vancouver.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED

- A. THAT Council formally request that the Province of British Columbia amend or repeal section 485 of the Vancouver Charter ("VC") to remove the requirement for an elected board of commissioners, variously referenced in legislation and elsewhere as the "Board of Parks and Recreation" and/or "Park Board", including any and all consequential and/or incidental amendments required to the VC and/or other related legislation, including that any and all legal obligations of the Park Board be assumed by the City, and

FURTHER THAT the legal capacity to exercise the powers currently bestowed on the Park Board under the VC, and the authority to enforce those powers, shall be devolved to and bestowed upon Council, and the delivery of parks and recreation services shall be administered by the City in accordance with Council direction, and

FURTHER THAT, in accordance with the above, Council formally request that the Province of British Columbia amend the process for revoking and/or cancelling the designation of areas designated as permanent public parks of the City under the VC, notably under section 488 of the VC ("Parks in care of Board"), to a unanimous vote of all Council members, along with provisions for a public referendum.

- B. THAT a Parks and Recreation Transition Working Group (“PRTWG”) (Type D advisory body) be convened to facilitate the smooth transition of responsibility for park and recreation services, from the current oversight by an elected Park Board to the oversight of Council, and

FURTHER THAT the PRTWG shall have a time-limited mandate of six (6) months to coordinate the ongoing engagement and relationships with park and recreation stakeholders, supported by City staff, and be comprised of the Mayor, the Mayor’s Chief of Staff, two City Councillors appointed by the Mayor, a current Park Board Commissioner appointed by the Mayor, and up to six (6) members of the public appointed by the Mayor, with Terms of Reference for the working group to be determined by the Mayor in consultation with, and under the advisement of, the City Manager and the General Manager of Parks and Recreation.

Q&A Document

Q1: How does the council justify this change as a 'new era' when many citizens believe the current system serves well?

We're not just entering a new era; we're leading it. While our parks are indeed well-loved, we have the opportunity to manage them even better. This is about enhancing what we cherish. This change will make our parks and recreation centers shine brighter as the treasures they truly are.

Q2: Critics are concerned this change could lead to commercialization of park spaces. What are the safeguards against this?

We are committed to preserving green spaces. This change is about managing these spaces more efficiently for the public good, not commercial interests. We're ensuring safeguards are in place, including the requirement of a public referendum for any major decisions like housing developments on parkland.

Q3: Can you provide specific instances where the separate park board structure has led to inefficiencies?

The separate structure, while unique, has sometimes resulted in duplicated efforts and delayed responses to the community's needs. By streamlining processes, we can address these inefficiencies, leading to more cohesive management and better service delivery.

Q4: There are concerns about transparency and accountability with this restructuring. How do you address these?

Transparency and accountability are core values of this process. The creation of the Parks Advisory Committee is a testament to our dedication to these principles. It will ensure a diverse range of voices is heard and represented during this transition.

Q5: Will people be losing their jobs with this change?

As with all organizational changes the City makes, we will endeavour to minimise impacts on our staff. While the detailed planning and analysis is yet to be done, we will strive to absorb staff changes through attrition wherever possible. .

Q6: How will the council involve the public in this significant change to ensure it aligns with the citizens' vision for their parks?

Public involvement is central to this process. The establishment of the Parks Advisory Committee will ensure that citizens' voices are not just heard but are instrumental in shaping the future of our parks. This change is being made with community collaboration at its heart.

Q7: How will this transition affect current projects and plans already in place by the park board?

All ongoing projects and plans will be thoughtfully reviewed. We are dedicated to honouring our commitments and ensuring that these projects align with the improved management structure to better serve our community.

Q8: What financial benefits can the public expect to see from this change, and how will these be measured?

By integrating the park board into our city's governance, s.13(1), s.17(1) This is a direct financial benefit to taxpayers and will be tracked and reported to ensure accountability and the effective use of these funds.

Q9: How can the council guarantee that this change will enhance, rather than reduce, the quality of park services?

The council has already demonstrated its commitment to enhancing park services with initiatives like the revival of the Stanley Park train. By aligning with other major Canadian cities' efficient practices, we will continue to build upon these improvements.

Q10: What measures are in place to ensure that the restructuring process itself will be managed effectively and without excess cost?

We are proceeding with a carefully planned, step-by-step approach, adhering to all legal and legislative requirements. This strategic management will ensure that the restructuring is as cost-effective as possible while achieving the desired outcomes for our parks.

Q11: Is this restructuring a response to allegations of mismanagement within the park board? How do you respond to those who see this as a punitive measure?

The move towards a new era of parks management in Vancouver is about proactively seeking ways to enhance our park system for all Vancouverites. We recognize the hard work and dedication of the park board, however this is a strategic decision to align with efficient practices seen in other major cities across Canada, ensuring our parks are managed in the most effective and sustainable way. The decision is made with the future in mind, considering how we can best serve our community's needs and preserve our green spaces for generations to come.

Q12: Where did the cost savings estimate come from?

This is a preliminary order-of-magnitude estimate, and with formal Council direction in place, staff will be working over the coming months to undertake a detailed analysis of cost and efficiency savings.

Mayor Ken Sim's Speaking Remarks (press conference)

- Good morning,
- [Land Acknowledgment]
- Thank you for joining us today as we look to the future of Vancouver's parks and recreation facilities and affirm our commitment to making Vancouver's parks and recreation facilities the best in the world.
- Today, we are taking a long overdue step that will ensure our parks and recreation facilities are able to serve our community to their fullest potential.
- It is vitally important at this moment in time that we take bold action to elevate the care of these essential spaces and bring a new level of accountability that will ensure the long term viability of our parks and recreation services.

- That is why, I am bringing a motion forward to Council next week that asks the Province to amend the Vancouver Charter to eliminate the requirement for an elected Park Board.
- This will bring parks and recreation under the direct control of City Council.
- Make no mistake about it: In our pursuit of progress and value for the people of Vancouver, we are aligning the management structure for parks and recreation with how it is done in every other major city in the country.
- As with all things in life, we must learn from others if we want to progress and grow. And what we have learned in recent years is that how we've been managing our parks and recreation system has not been working and is irretrievably broken.
- The steps we are announcing today will allow us to manage Vancouver's parks and recreation facilities more collaboratively and in harmony with the City's broader priorities.

- Our parks are our city's jewels, and our commitment to preserving these green spaces remains unwavering. This change is about managing these spaces more efficiently, not about compromising them.
- This change will ensure that our parks and recreation facilities finally get the care and attention they deserve and they can be restored to the gems they once were.
- Beyond the opportunities for improved services, we know that adopting this new streamlined governance approach – in alignment with every other city in Canada – s.13(1), s.17(1)

- This savings will result from substantial efficiencies, which will free up a huge quantity of staff time - which means more things will get done more quickly with existing staff levels which also avoids future incremental operating costs.
- Let's be clear here: The decision to introduce this motion was not made in isolation.

- We have the backing of a wide range of community leaders, including those who have served on the Park Board and who acknowledge the need for change.
- Their support speaks volumes about the positive impact we expect to make on our community.
- Every dollar saved is a dollar we'll invest back into the city, strengthening the fabric of our community, enhancing the vibrancy of Vancouver, allowing us to live in a Vancouver that is not just a place to live, but a place to thrive.
- Thriving means having spaces that aren't just office blocks and houses.
- It's our precious communal spaces like parks that bring us together. And it's for this reason that our commitment to improving our parks and recreation facilities is unwavering.

- I believe in this strategy and the vision I am advancing today, and I promise that I will stand by this commitment as your Mayor.
- But my voice alone is only one of many voices. And as Vancouverites all our voices count.
- So make no mistake about it: the transition to this new model will be inclusive and transparent.
- That's why we will also be establishing a Parks and Recreation Advisory Task Force to ensure the smooth transition of responsibility for parks and recreation services, from the current elected Park Board to Vancouver's City Council.
- The Task force will have a mandate to coordinate the ongoing engagement and relationships with park and recreation stakeholders and bring community perspectives to the forefront.
- Staff will also be working to develop a transition plan, through which more exact savings will be identified and developed.

- And for those who may worry what this means for our cherished green spaces, know this: The same protections that have always been in place will remain in place.
- We are making decisions about a clear vision for the future—a future where our parks are protected, properly maintained, and enjoyed by all.
- And make no mistake about it; Your views, your voice and, most of all, your continued commitment to our city’s incredible parks and our recreation facilities are essential in shaping this new chapter in the long legacy of parks and recreation in Vancouver.
- Today marks a turning point and a new approach to improving and preserving our city’s beloved green spaces and community centres. And I invite you all to join us as we move forward into the future with renewed purpose and vision.

- Thank you.

Vancouver Mayor Ken Sim Seeks Amendment to the Vancouver Charter to Remove the Elected Park Board

Vancouver, B.C., December 6, 2023 – Mayor Ken Sim announced this morning that he is bringing forward a motion asking the Province to remove the requirement for an elected Park Board under the Vancouver Charter.

To accomplish this change, Mayor Sim will be introducing a motion at next Wednesday's Council meeting requesting that the Province amend and repeal the relevant sections of the Vancouver Charter, and for the legal powers currently held by the Park Board to be transferred to City Council.

Mayor Sim's motion states that in recent years, "it has become abundantly clear, given the poor state of Vancouver's parks, recreation services, and infrastructure, that a fundamental change in the governance structure is not only needed, it is the only viable path forward to efficient and effective parks and recreation services for the people of Vancouver."

"Make no mistake about it. Vancouver's parks, recreation services, and cultural assets are prized by Vancouverites and visitors alike and must be protected, maintained, and preserved indefinitely for future generations," said Mayor Sim. "The commitment I'm making to the people of our city today includes establishing stronger protections around any changes to our parks. This will be a new era for parks and recreation in our city."

Vancouver is the only municipality in the entire country with an elected park board. In every other city in Canada, parks and recreation services are managed directly by a parks and recreation department under the direction of their respective city councils.

Recently, Vancouver's independent Auditor General released a performance audit of the Park Board's revenue management practices. The audit determined that the Park Board did not operate an effective framework for achieving revenue-related objectives. Moreover, it found that the Park Board was not proactively engaging with City Council to align its priorities with available funding, despite the fact that all Park Board expenditures require the approval of City Council.

Vancouver's park and recreation assets include 250 public parks and beaches, including Stanley Park, VanDusen Botanical Garden, Bloedel Conservatory, a large public recreation system of 24 community centres, swimming pools, rinks and arenas, sports playing fields, playgrounds, fitness centres, three championship golf courses, street trees, and marinas among other services and facilities.

Mayor Sim's motion also calls for the creation of a Parks and Recreation Transition Working Group to facilitate a smooth transition of responsibility for park and recreation services from the current oversight by the Park Board to the oversight of City Council. The working group would be in place for six months to coordinate ongoing engagement and relationships with park and recreation stakeholders. It would be supported by City staff through the City Manager's Office.

As a local nation with many levels of formal and informal interaction with the City, the proposed streamlined structure will provide clarity and a single point of contact for engaging with the City on the issues that matter most to our people.”

Lorraine Lowe - Executive Director, Dr. Sun-Yat Sen Garden Society

“The Dr. Sun-Yat Sen Garden Society of Vancouver provides engaging cultural events for the Vancouver community throughout the year. Since 2016, we have not been able to negotiate a renewed lease agreement with the Parks Board resulting in ongoing challenges around maintenance and investment in the space. I am optimistic that the motion being brought forward will alleviate some of the challenges our organization has faced over the years.”

Mike Burdick – President, Marpole Community Board of Directors

“I am, along with our Community, all for change that will help simplify city processes. In our experience, this cannot happen soon enough. We look forward to working with Council directly to support the Marpole community, including the work currently underway to build the long awaited Marpole-Oakridge Community Centre. If these changes can make it easier for another Community to achieve their goals then we are all for it!”

Mia Kohout – General Manager, Vancouver Bike Share Inc. (Mobi)

“We are excited to see this motion come forward. Historically, establishing new Mobi Bike stations in parks has been complicated and slow because we have to work with two governmental bodies within the City of Vancouver. This change would simplify and speed up the approval process for Mobi stations in parks, eliminating unnecessary bureaucracy and allowing us to bring more active transportation services to our city.”

Pall Beesla - South Asian Community Advocate + Vaisakhi Organizer

“South Vancouver has been overlooked for too long by past Park Boards. I applaud Mayor Ken Sim for proposing to collapse the Park Board. It’s been clear for a very long time that things are not working well under the current structure, and change is overdue. There is a significant park and recreation deficit in the city, particularly in South Vancouver. Through organizing community events, we have seen many challenges and redundancy that make community building difficult because of inefficient processes.”

Mark Cylwa – President, Vancouver United Football Club

“At Vancouver United our motto is ‘Game, Club, Community’. With that in mind, we strive to develop young soccer players, not only as players who we hope will enjoy involvement in the game for their lifetime, but as individuals who will be active in the club, supportive of other club members, and contribute to the well-being of the community as a whole. A key issue in obtaining our goals is access to a safe, reliable inventory of field space on which to run programming and accommodate our growth. At Vancouver United FC, we support any initiative which has the goal of improving equal field access to all stakeholders in a fair, efficient and effective manner.”

Paul Runnals – Executive Producer, Honda Celebration of Light

“As a company that specializes in festivals and major events, we are focused on delivering safe, exciting and innovative events in the region. I support this motion as I believe it will streamline the festival permitting and approval process and will help to create a financially sustainable environment where organizers can bring even more diverse and engaging events to our city.”

Leigh Ramsden + Rod Akizuki, President + Treasurer of Vancouver Minor Softball Association

“The Vancouver Minor Softball Association, which provides softball for hundreds of girls and young women in Vancouver, is motivated to bring the benefits of youth sports to the next generation of female athletes in our city. As such, we are supportive of any measures which improve the fields and facilities we use, and their administration. We look forward to working hand in hand with the City to help engage with more girls and young women, and increase their opportunity to play sports as we move forward.”

Motion:

Amendment to the Vancouver Charter

Submitted by: Mayor Ken Sim

WHEREAS

1. The City of Vancouver, including the Vancouver Board of Parks and Recreation (“Park Board”), is primarily created and governed by the Vancouver Charter (VC), a provincial statute enacted in 1953 that incorporates the City of Vancouver;
2. The VC sets out the statutory powers and authorities which govern the City of Vancouver, and provides a range of powers and responsibilities different from those of other communities governed primarily by the Community Charter (CC) and the Local Government Act (LGA);
3. The VC governs how the City operates, what by-laws Council can enact, and how budgets are determined. Under the VC, Council has the authority to enact by-laws to regulate such things as noise and land use, to buy and sell property, to collect certain taxes, to approve expenditures, and to take on debt, give grants, and hire and discharge employees;
4. The Park Board is established by section 485 of the VC (Part XXIII – Parks), which reads;

“A board of commissioners, to be known as the "Board of Parks and Recreation" or "Park Board," shall be elected as hereinafter provided, and shall consist of seven members or such other number as the Council may by by-law prescribe. The Board has the legal capacity to exercise the powers bestowed on it and to enforce those powers and the exercise thereof by actions, proceeding or prosecution.”;
5. The Park Board looks after 250 public parks and beaches, including Stanley Park, VanDusen Botanical Garden, Bloedel Conservatory, and a large public recreation system of 24 community centres, swimming pools, rinks and arenas, sport playing fields, playgrounds, fitness centres, three championship golf courses, street trees, and marinas, among other services and facilities;

6. The City of Vancouver is the only municipality in Canada with an elected park board, with the exception of the Cultus Lake Park Board which is made up of five elected Commissioners (i.e., three elected from the Cultus Lake Park jurisdiction and two elected from the City of Chilliwack jurisdiction);
7. Vancouver's Auditor General (AGO) recently released a performance audit report of the revenue management practices of the Park Board. The audit determined that while some processes were used to inform fee-setting, the Park Board did not operate an effective framework for achieving revenue-related objectives for its revenue-generating assets and services;
8. The AGO's audit report further noted that the Park Board's overall funding structure, as set out in the VC, requires it to obtain City Council approval for all expenditures, including the expenditure of funds generated from revenue-generating activities. The audit found that while the Park Board has strategies to guide the delivery of parks and recreation services, it had not proactively engaged with City Council to align its priorities with available funding;
9. Vancouver's parks, recreation, and cultural assets are prized by Vancouverites and visitors alike and must be protected, maintained, and preserved sustainably and in good working order for future generations;
10. The Park Board, for most practical intents, functions like any other department of the City, albeit as a separate entity with significant independent authority through its elected board;
11. Over the years, the Province has amended the VC numerous times to accommodate the changing needs and priorities of the city. Some amendments have been significant while others have been consequential and/or incidental to other legislation introduced by the Province; and
12. In recent years it has become abundantly clear, given the poor state of Vancouver's parks, recreation services, and infrastructure, that a fundamental change in governance structure is not only needed, it is the only viable path forward to an efficient and effective parks and recreation service for the people of Vancouver.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED

- A. THAT Council formally request that the Province of British Columbia amend or repeal section 485 of the Vancouver Charter ("VC") to remove the requirement for an elected board of commissioners, variously referenced in legislation and elsewhere as the "Board of Parks and Recreation" and/or "Park Board", including any and all consequential and/or incidental amendments required to the VC and/or other related legislation, including that any and all legal obligations of the Park Board be assumed by the City, and

FURTHER THAT the legal capacity to exercise the powers currently bestowed on the Park Board under the VC, and the authority to enforce those powers, shall be devolved

to and bestowed upon Council, and the delivery of parks and recreation services shall be administered by the City in accordance with Council direction, and

FURTHER THAT, in accordance with the above, Council formally request that the Province of British Columbia amend the process for revoking and/or cancelling the designation of areas designated as permanent public parks of the City under the VC, notably under section 488 of the VC (“Parks in care of Board”), to a unanimous vote of all Council members, along with provisions for a public referendum.

- B. THAT a Parks and Recreation Transition Working Group (“PRTWG”) (Type D advisory body) be convened to facilitate the smooth transition of responsibility for park and recreation services, from the current oversight by an elected Park Board to the oversight of Council, and

FURTHER THAT the PRTWG shall have a time-limited mandate of six (6) months to coordinate the ongoing engagement and relationships with park and recreation stakeholders, supported by City staff, and be comprised of the Mayor, the Mayor’s Chief of Staff, two City Councillors appointed by the Mayor, a current Park Board Commissioner appointed by the Mayor, and up to six (6) members of the public appointed by the Mayor, with Terms of Reference for the working group to be determined by the Mayor in consultation with, and under the advisement of, the City Manager and the General Manager of Parks and Recreation.

Report Suspicious

Hey Maria,

Robyn Crawford here from City News 1130 Vancouver.

We just interviewed Park Board Commissioner Tom Digby.

He is claiming the Mayor has plans to ask the premier to abolish the Park Board.

He is also claiming there is an ABC-only meeting tonight to discuss the Vancouver charter related to the Park Board ahead of the Mayor's press conference tomorrow.

Does the Mayor have comment on any of these claims?

I know it is the end of the day, but we are planning to go with what Tom is saying—attributing to him—this evening.

Please let me know if we will be able to get comment.

Thanks,
Robyn

Report Suspicious

Hi Maria,

We are checking to see if Ken Sim would like to weigh in on the Park Board audit report – given he initially promised to abolish the elected Park Board and roll it back under the authority of city council:

<https://vancouver.ca/files/cov/2023-park-board-revenue-management-audit-report.pdf>

[https://globalnews.ca/news/7763757/vancouver-park-board-abolish-ken-sim-promise/ \[globalnews.ca\]](https://globalnews.ca/news/7763757/vancouver-park-board-abolish-ken-sim-promise/)

Please let me know if he's around city hall for a quick interview before 3pm today.

We will be at city hall around noon for another interview so if the mayor wanted to step out 1220-1230pm, we'd be able to accommodate.

Thank you,
Kristen

The City of Vancouver acknowledges that it is situated on the unceded traditional territories of the Musqueam, Squamish, and Tsleil-Waututh peoples.

Mayor Ken Sim's Speaking Remarks (press conference)

- Good morning,
- [Land Acknowledgment]
- Thank you for joining us today as we look to the future of Vancouver's parks and recreation facilities and affirm our commitment to making Vancouver's parks and recreation facilities the best in the world.
- Today, we are taking a long overdue step that will ensure our parks and recreation facilities are able to serve our community to their fullest potential.
- It is vitally important at this moment in time that we take bold action to elevate the care of these essential spaces and bring a new level of accountability that will ensure the long term viability of our parks and recreation services.

- That is why, I am bringing a motion forward to Council next week that asks the Province to amend the Vancouver Charter to eliminate the requirement for an elected Park Board.
- This will bring parks and recreation under the direct control of City Council.
- Make no mistake about it: In our pursuit of progress and value for the people of Vancouver, we are aligning the management structure for parks and recreation with how it is done in every other major city in the country.
- As with all things in life, we must learn from others if we want to progress and grow. And what we have learned in recent years is that how we've been managing our parks and recreation system has not been working and is irretrievably broken.
- The steps we are announcing today will allow us to manage Vancouver's parks and recreation facilities more collaboratively and in harmony with the City's broader priorities.

- Our parks are our city's jewels, and our commitment to preserving these green spaces remains unwavering. This change is about managing these spaces more efficiently, not about compromising them.
- This change will ensure that our parks and recreation facilities finally get the care and attention they deserve and they can be restored to the gems they once were.
- Beyond the opportunities for improved services, we know that adopting this new streamlined governance approach – in alignment with every other city in Canada – s.13(1), s.17(1)
s.13(1), s.17(1)
- This savings will result from substantial efficiencies, which will free up a huge quantity of staff time - which means more things will get done more quickly with existing staff levels which also avoids future incremental operating costs.
- Let's be clear here: The decision to introduce this motion was not made in isolation.

- We have the backing of a wide range of community leaders, including those who have served on the Park Board and who acknowledge the need for change.
- Their support speaks volumes about the positive impact we expect to make on our community.
- Every dollar saved is a dollar we'll invest back into the city, strengthening the fabric of our community, enhancing the vibrancy of Vancouver, allowing us to live in a Vancouver that is not just a place to live, but a place to thrive.
- Thriving means having spaces that aren't just office blocks and houses.
- It's our precious communal spaces like parks that bring us together. And it's for this reason that our commitment to improving our parks and recreation facilities is unwavering.

- I believe in this strategy and the vision I am advancing today, and I promise that I will stand by this commitment as your Mayor.
- But my voice alone is only one of many voices. And as Vancouverites all our voices count.
- So make no mistake about it: the transition to this new model will be inclusive and transparent.
- That's why we will also be establishing a Parks and Recreation Advisory Task Force to ensure the smooth transition of responsibility for parks and recreation services, from the current elected Park Board to Vancouver's City Council.
- The Task force will have a mandate to coordinate the ongoing engagement and relationships with park and recreation stakeholders and bring community perspectives to the forefront.
- Staff will also be working to develop a transition plan, through which more exact savings will be identified and developed.

- And for those who may worry what this means for our cherished green spaces, know this: The same protections that have always been in place will remain in place.
- We are making decisions about a clear vision for the future—a future where our parks are protected, properly maintained, and enjoyed by all.
- And make no mistake about it; Your views, your voice and, most of all, your continued commitment to our city’s incredible parks and our recreation facilities are essential in shaping this new chapter in the long legacy of parks and recreation in Vancouver.
- Today marks a turning point and a new approach to improving and preserving our city’s beloved green spaces and community centres. And I invite you all to join us as we move forward into the future with renewed purpose and vision.

- Thank you.

Mayor Ken Sim's Speaking Remarks

- Good morning,
- Today, we gather on [INSERT PLACE NAME AND LAND RECOGNITION HERE] to affirm our utmost commitment to the future of Vancouver's parks.
- Today marks a turning point, a chance to enhance our beloved green spaces.
- Today, we ensure our parks serve our community to their fullest potential.
- Today, by offering parks the management they deserve, we can make Vancouver a leader in outdoor spaces across Canada.

Alternate Opening Paragraphs:

- "Good morning,
- In the heart of Vancouver, our parks stand as symbols of the city's commitment to the environment, to community, and to natural beauty.
- Today, we pledge to elevate the care of these spaces, by ensuring a new era of parks with the enhanced management that they deserve.
- "Good morning,
- Vancouver thrives on the greenery of its parks. From fond walks with loved ones to the joys of children running through the grass, our parks provide the common grounds where memories are made.

- This is why we're here to announce a new era of parks in Vancouver which will secure and improve these precious spaces for generations to come."
- "Good morning,
- As I look out onto the landscapes that make our city a haven for greenery within the greys of tarmac and silver of skyscrapers, I am filled with pride of what we have achieved.
- It's with this pride that , we chart a new era for our parks today—an era that will bring our park management to new heights of efficiency and community benefit."
- To do this, we must learn from others.
- That is why, in our pursuit of progress and value, we have aligned our strategy with other major Canadian cities where these measures have been successful.

<CONFIDENTIAL DRAFT RELEASE Vancouver Mayor Ken Sim Seeks Amendment to the Vancouver Charter to Remove the Elected Park Board.pdf>

Vancouver Mayor Ken Sim Seeks Amendment to the Vancouver Charter to Remove the Elected Park Board

Vancouver, B.C., December 6, 2023 – Mayor Ken Sim announced this morning that he is bringing forward a motion asking the Province to remove the requirement for an elected Park Board under the Vancouver Charter.

To accomplish this change, Mayor Sim will be introducing a motion at next Wednesday’s Council meeting requesting that the Province amend and repeal the relevant sections of the Vancouver Charter, and for the legal powers currently held by the Park Board to be transferred to City Council.

Mayor Sim’s motion states that in recent years, “it has become abundantly clear, given the poor state of Vancouver’s parks, recreation services, and infrastructure, that a fundamental change in the governance structure is not only needed, it is the only viable path forward to efficient and effective parks and recreation services for the people of Vancouver.”

“Make no mistake about it. Vancouver’s parks, recreation services, and cultural assets are prized by Vancouverites and visitors alike and must be protected, maintained, and preserved indefinitely for future generations,” said Mayor Sim. “The commitment I’m making to the people of our city today includes establishing stronger protections around any changes to our parks. This will be a new era for parks and recreation in our city.”

Vancouver is the only municipality in the entire country with an elected park board. In every other city in Canada, parks and recreation services are managed directly by a parks and recreation department under the direction of their respective city councils.

Recently, Vancouver’s independent Auditor General released a performance audit of the Park Board’s revenue management practices. The audit determined that the Park Board did not operate an effective framework for achieving revenue-related objectives. Moreover, it found that the Park Board was not proactively engaging with City Council to align its priorities with available funding, despite the fact that all Park Board expenditures require the approval of City Council.

Vancouver’s park and recreation assets include 250 public parks and beaches, including Stanley Park, VanDusen Botanical Garden, Bloedel Conservatory, a large public recreation system of 24 community centres, swimming pools, rinks and arenas, sports playing fields, playgrounds, fitness centres, three championship golf courses, street trees, and marinas among other services and facilities.

Mayor Sim’s motion also calls for the creation of a Parks and Recreation Transition Working Group to facilitate a smooth transition of responsibility for park and recreation services from the current oversight by the Park Board to the oversight of City Council. The working group would be in place for six months to coordinate ongoing engagement and relationships with park and recreation stakeholders. It would be supported by City staff through the City Manager’s Office.

Motion:

Amendment to the Vancouver Charter

Submitted by: Mayor Ken Sim

WHEREAS

1. The City of Vancouver, including the Vancouver Board of Parks and Recreation ("Park Board"), is primarily created and governed by the Vancouver Charter (VC), a provincial statute enacted in 1953 that incorporates the City of Vancouver;
2. The VC sets out the statutory powers and authorities which govern the City of Vancouver, and provides a range of powers and responsibilities different from those of other communities governed primarily by the Community Charter ("CC") and the Local Government Act ("LGA");
3. The VC governs how the City operates, what by-laws Council can enact, and how budgets are determined. Under the VC, Council has the authority to enact by-laws to regulate such things as noise and land use, to buy and sell property, to collect certain taxes, to approve expenditures, and to take on debt, give grants, and hire and discharge employees;
4. The Park Board is established by section 485 of the VC (Part XXIII – Parks), which reads;

"A board of commissioners, to be known as the "Board of Parks and Recreation" or "Park Board," shall be elected as hereinafter provided, and shall consist of seven members or such other number as the Council may by by-law prescribe. The Board has the legal capacity to exercise the powers bestowed on it and to enforce those powers and the exercise thereof by actions, proceeding or prosecution.";
5. The Park Board looks after 250 public parks and beaches, including Stanley Park, VanDusen Botanical Garden, Bloedel Conservatory, and a large public recreation system of 24 community centres, swimming pools, rinks and arenas, sport playing fields, playgrounds, fitness centres, three championship golf courses, street trees, and marinas, among other services and facilities;
6. The City of Vancouver is the only municipality in Canada with an elected park board, with the exception of the Cultus Lake Park Board which is made up of five elected Commissioners (i.e., three elected from the Cultus Lake Park jurisdiction and two elected from the City of Chilliwack jurisdiction);
7. Vancouver's Auditor General (AGO) recently released a performance audit report of the revenue management practices of the Park Board. The audit determined that while some processes were used to inform fee-setting, the Park Board did not operate an effective framework for achieving revenue-related objectives for its revenue-generating assets and services;

8. The AGO's audit report further noted that the Park Board's overall funding structure, as set out in the VC, requires it to obtain City Council approval for all expenditures, including the expenditure of funds generated from revenue-generating activities. The audit found that while the Park Board has strategies to guide the delivery of parks and recreation services, it had not proactively engaged with City Council to align its priorities with available funding;
9. Vancouver's parks, recreation, and cultural assets are prized by Vancouverites and visitors alike and must be protected, maintained, and preserved sustainably and in good working order for future generations;
10. The Park Board, for most practical intents, functions like any other department of the City, albeit as a separate entity with significant independent authority through its elected board;
11. Over the years, the Province has amended the VC numerous times to accommodate the changing needs and priorities of the city. Some amendments have been significant while others have been consequential and/or incidental to other legislation introduced by the Province; and
12. In recent years it has become abundantly clear, given the poor state of Vancouver's parks, recreation services, and infrastructure, that a fundamental change in governance structure is not only needed, it is the only viable path forward to an efficient and effective parks and recreation service for the people of Vancouver.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED

- A. THAT Council formally request that the Province of British Columbia amend or repeal section 485 of the Vancouver Charter ("VC") to remove the requirement for an elected board of commissioners, variously referenced in legislation and elsewhere as the "Board of Parks and Recreation" and/or "Park Board", including any and all consequential and/or incidental amendments required to the VC and/or other related legislation, including that any and all legal obligations of the Park Board be assumed by the City, and

FURTHER THAT the legal capacity to exercise the powers currently bestowed on the Park Board under the VC, and the authority to enforce those powers, shall be devolved to and bestowed upon Council, and the delivery of parks and recreation services shall be administered by the City in accordance with Council direction, and

FURTHER THAT, in accordance with the above, Council formally request that the Province of British Columbia amend the process for revoking and/or cancelling the designation of areas designated as permanent public parks of the City under the VC, notably under section 488 of the VC ("Parks in care of Board"), to a unanimous vote of all Council members, along with provisions for a public referendum.

- B. THAT a Parks and Recreation Transition Working Group (“PRTWG”) (Type D advisory body) be convened to facilitate the smooth transition of responsibility for park and recreation services, from the current oversight by an elected Park Board to the oversight of Council, and

FURTHER THAT the PRTWG shall have a time-limited mandate of six (6) months to coordinate the ongoing engagement and relationships with park and recreation stakeholders, supported by City staff, and be comprised of the Mayor, the Mayor’s Chief of Staff, two City Councillors appointed by the Mayor, a current Park Board Commissioner appointed by the Mayor, and up to six (6) members of the public appointed by the Mayor, with Terms of Reference for the working group to be determined by the Mayor in consultation with, and under the advisement of, the City Manager and the General Manager of Parks and Recreation.

Vancouver Mayor Ken Sim Seeks Amendment to the Vancouver Charter to Remove the Elected Park Board

Vancouver, B.C., December 6, 2023 – Mayor Ken Sim announced this morning that he is bringing forward a motion asking the Province to remove the requirement for an elected Park Board under the Vancouver Charter.

To accomplish this change, Mayor Sim will be introducing a motion at next Wednesday's Council meeting requesting that the Province amend and repeal the relevant sections of the Vancouver Charter, and for the legal powers currently held by the Park Board to be transferred to City Council.

Mayor Sim's motion states that in recent years, "it has become abundantly clear, given the poor state of Vancouver's parks, recreation services, and infrastructure, that a fundamental change in the governance structure is not only needed, it is the only viable path forward to efficient and effective parks and recreation services for the people of Vancouver."

"Make no mistake about it. Vancouver's parks, recreation services, and cultural assets are prized by Vancouverites and visitors alike and must be protected, maintained, and preserved indefinitely for future generations," said Mayor Sim. "The commitment I'm making to the people of our city today includes establishing stronger protections around any changes to our parks. This will be a new era for parks and recreation in our city."

Vancouver is the only municipality in the entire country with an elected park board. In every other city in Canada, parks and recreation services are managed directly by a parks and recreation department under the direction of their respective city councils.

Recently, Vancouver's independent Auditor General released a performance audit of the Park Board's revenue management practices. The audit determined that the Park Board did not operate an effective framework for achieving revenue-related objectives. Moreover, it found that the Park Board was not proactively engaging with City Council to align its priorities with available funding, despite the fact that all Park Board expenditures require the approval of City Council.

Vancouver's park and recreation assets include 250 public parks and beaches, including Stanley Park, VanDusen Botanical Garden, Bloedel Conservatory, a large public recreation system of 24 community centres, swimming pools, rinks and arenas, sports playing fields, playgrounds, fitness centres, three championship golf courses, street trees, and marinas among other services and facilities.

Mayor Sim's motion also calls for the creation of a Parks and Recreation Transition Working Group to facilitate a smooth transition of responsibility for park and recreation services from the current oversight by the Park Board to the oversight of City Council. The working group would be in place for six months to coordinate ongoing engagement and relationships with park and recreation stakeholders. It would be supported by City staff through the City Manager's Office.

Quotes:

Chief Wayne Sparrow - Musqueam First Nation

"This is definitely a step in the right direction. Having a single department with authority for park land in the city will benefit everyone, including the Musqueam Indian Band. As a local nation with many levels of formal and informal interaction with the City, the proposed streamlined structure will provide clarity and a single point of contact for engaging with the City on the issues that matter most to our people."

Lorraine Lowe - Executive Director, Dr. Sun-Yat Sen Garden Society

"The Dr. Sun-Yat Sen Garden Society of Vancouver provides engaging cultural events for the Vancouver community throughout the year. Since 2016, we have not been able to negotiate a renewed lease agreement with the Parks Board resulting in ongoing challenges around maintenance and investment in the space. I am optimistic that the motion being brought forward will alleviate some of the challenges our organization has faced over the years."

Mike Burdick – President, Marpole Community Board of Directors

"I am, along with our Community, all for change that will help simplify city processes. In our experience, this cannot happen soon enough. We look forward to working with Council directly to support the Marpole community, including the work currently underway to build the long awaited Marpole-Oakridge Community Centre. If these changes can make it easier for another Community to achieve their goals then we are all for it!"

Mia Kohout – General Manager, Vancouver Bike Share Inc. (Mobi)

"We are excited to see this motion come forward. Historically, establishing new Mobi Bike stations in parks has been complicated and slow because we have to work with two governmental bodies within the City of Vancouver. This change would simplify and speed up the approval process for Mobi stations in parks, eliminating unnecessary bureaucracy and allowing us to bring more active transportation services to our city."

Pall Beesla - South Asian Community Advocate + Vaisakhi Organizer

"South Vancouver has been overlooked for too long by past Park Boards. I applaud Mayor Ken Sim for proposing to collapse the Park Board. It's been clear for a very long time that things are not working well under the current structure, and change is overdue. There is a significant park and recreation deficit in the city, particularly in South Vancouver. Through organizing community events, we have seen many challenges and redundancy that make community building difficult because of inefficient processes."

Mark Cylwa – President, Vancouver United Football Club

"At Vancouver United our motto is 'Game, Club, Community'. With that in mind, we strive to develop young soccer players, not only as players who we hope will enjoy involvement in the game for their lifetime, but as individuals who will be active in the club, supportive of other club members, and contribute to the well-being of the community as a whole. A key issue in obtaining our goals is access to a safe, reliable inventory of field space on which to run programming and accommodate our growth. At Vancouver United FC, we support any initiative which has the goal of improving equal field access to all stakeholders in a fair, efficient and effective manner.”

Paul Runnals – Executive Producer, Honda Celebration of Light

“As a company that specializes in festivals and major events, we are focused on delivering safe, exciting and innovative events in the region. I support this motion as I believe it will streamline the festival permitting and approval process and will help to create a financially sustainable environment where organizers can bring even more diverse and engaging events to our city.”

Leigh Ramsden + Rod Akizuki, President + Treasurer of Vancouver Minor Softball Association

“The Vancouver Minor Softball Association, which provides softball for hundreds of girls and young women in Vancouver, is motivated to bring the benefits of youth sports to the next generation of female athletes in our city. As such, we are supportive of any measures which improve the fields and facilities we use, and their administration. We look forward to working hand in hand with the City to help engage with more girls and young women, and increase their opportunity to play sports as we move forward.”

Motion:

Amendment to the Vancouver Charter

Submitted by: Mayor Ken Sim

WHEREAS

1. The City of Vancouver, including the Vancouver Board of Parks and Recreation (“Park Board”), is primarily created and governed by the Vancouver Charter (VC), a provincial statute enacted in 1953 that incorporates the City of Vancouver;
2. The VC sets out the statutory powers and authorities which govern the City of Vancouver, and provides a range of powers and responsibilities different from those of other communities governed primarily by the Community Charter (CC) and the Local Government Act (LGA);
3. The VC governs how the City operates, what by-laws Council can enact, and how budgets are determined. Under the VC, Council has the authority to enact by-laws to regulate such things as noise and land use, to buy and sell property, to collect certain taxes, to approve expenditures, and to take on debt, give grants, and hire and discharge employees;
4. The Park Board is established by section 485 of the VC (Part XXIII – Parks), which reads;

“A board of commissioners, to be known as the "Board of Parks and Recreation" or "Park Board," shall be elected as hereinafter provided, and shall consist of seven members or such other number as the Council may by by-law prescribe. The Board has the legal capacity to exercise the powers bestowed on it and to enforce those powers and the exercise thereof by actions, proceeding or prosecution.”;
5. The Park Board looks after 250 public parks and beaches, including Stanley Park, VanDusen Botanical Garden, Bloedel Conservatory, and a large public recreation system of 24 community centres, swimming pools, rinks and arenas, sport playing fields, playgrounds, fitness centres, three championship golf courses, street trees, and marinas, among other services and facilities;
6. The City of Vancouver is the only municipality in Canada with an elected park board, with the exception of the Cultus Lake Park Board which is made up of five elected Commissioners (i.e., three elected from the Cultus Lake Park jurisdiction and two elected from the City of Chilliwack jurisdiction);
7. Vancouver’s Auditor General (AGO) recently released a performance audit report of the revenue management practices of the Park Board. The audit determined that while some processes were used to inform fee-setting, the Park Board did not operate an effective framework for achieving revenue-related

7. objectives for its revenue-generating assets and services;
8. The AGO's audit report further noted that the Park Board's overall funding structure, as set out in the VC, requires it to obtain City Council approval for all expenditures, including the expenditure of funds generated from revenue-generating activities. The audit found that while the Park Board has strategies to guide the delivery of parks and recreation services, it had not proactively engaged with City Council to align its priorities with available funding;
9. Vancouver's parks, recreation, and cultural assets are prized by Vancouverites and visitors alike and must be protected, maintained, and preserved sustainably and in good working order for future generations;
10. The Park Board, for most practical intents, functions like any other department of the City, albeit as a separate entity with significant independent authority through its elected board;
11. Over the years, the Province has amended the VC numerous times to accommodate the changing needs and priorities of the city. Some amendments have been significant while others have been consequential and/or incidental to other legislation introduced by the Province; and
12. In recent years it has become abundantly clear, given the poor state of Vancouver's parks, recreation services, and infrastructure, that a fundamental change in governance structure is not only needed, it is the only viable path forward to an efficient and effective parks and recreation service for the people of Vancouver.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED

- A. THAT Council formally request that the Province of British Columbia amend or repeal section 485 of the Vancouver Charter ("VC") to remove the requirement for an elected board of commissioners, variously referenced in legislation and elsewhere as the "Board of Parks and Recreation" and/or "Park Board", including any and all consequential and/or incidental amendments required to the VC and/or other related legislation, including that any and all legal obligations of the Park Board be assumed by the City, and

FURTHER THAT the legal capacity to exercise the powers currently bestowed on the Park Board under the VC, and the authority to enforce those powers, shall be devolved to and bestowed upon Council, and the delivery of parks and recreation services shall be administered by the City in accordance with Council direction, and

FURTHER THAT, in accordance with the above, Council formally request that the Province of British Columbia amend the process for revoking and/or cancelling the designation of areas designated as permanent public parks of the City under the VC, notably under section 488 of the VC ("Parks in care of Board"), to a unanimous vote of all Council members, along with provisions for a public referendum.

- B. THAT a Parks and Recreation Transition Working Group ("PRTWG") (Type D advisory body) be convened to facilitate the smooth transition of responsibility for park and recreation services, from the current oversight by an elected Park Board to the oversight of Council, and

FURTHER THAT the PRTWG shall have a time-limited mandate of six (6) months to coordinate the ongoing engagement and relationships with park and recreation stakeholders, supported by City staff, and be comprised of the Mayor, the Mayor's Chief of Staff, two City Councillors appointed by the Mayor, a current Park Board Commissioner appointed by the Mayor, and up to six (6) members of the public appointed by the Mayor, with Terms of Reference for the working group to be determined by the Mayor in consultation with, and under the advisement of, the City Manager and the General Manager of Parks and Recreation.
