Volunteers Wanted!

Do you have a passion for public space and urban design and want to help us better understand public life in the downtown?

As part of Places for People Downtown, we are looking for engaged, committed and enthusiastic individuals to help us with the City's first ever Public Space and Public Life Study this summer. The study will assess how people use downtown public spaces and seek their feedback on the quality of these spaces.

If you are interested in volunteering, please let us know by emailing us at:

placesforpeople@vancouver.ca

OUR PUBLIC SPACES

What's your vision for public space?

Vancouver's public spaces – our plazas, squares, streets, laneways, pathways, and waterfront – are where public life happens.

We're looking for your feedback on how to plan and deliver exceptional, vibrant, and memorable public spaces, places, and experiences in the downtown peninsula.

Keep an eye out for us in the downtown this summer. Check out our information boards, take our survey, and pick up a free public space map and collectable postcards. We will be in your neighbourhood on these dates:

- July 6, 4-6 pm Bill Curtis Square (Yaletown)
- July 8, 11-2 pm Coal Harbour Park (Coal Harbour)
- July 11, 4-6 pm Robson-Bute Plaza (West End)
- July 13, 3-6 pm Jim Deva Plaza (West End)

Visit us at: vancouver.ca/placesforpeople to take our online survey, show us your ideas for public space on an interactive map, and register for our walking tours.

New Trial Plaza Opens at Bute and Robson Street

- Opened in time for Canada Day on July 1, the plaza will remain until October 16.
- Lessons learned during the trial will inform a potential permanent plaza at this location.
- This space was identified in the City's Transportation 2040 and West End plans as a potential future public space.
